Equality Impact Assessment: Guidelines and Procedure

This formal procedure is intended to enable us to ensure that the way we operate (particularly as expressed through policies and procedures) does not adversely impact on particular groups in a way that is not justified or unavoidable. It should complement and underpin our attempts to promote equal opportunities, promote good relations between different groups and to eliminate discrimination. For everything we do we should ask the question: 'How is this likely to impact on people?'

Equality Impact Assessment (EqIA) should be used as an integral part of policy development and to assess existing policies. Once we have assessed all existing policies the assessment process will be embedded as part of policy and procedure development.

5. How might the policy or procedure impact on different groups? Are there any particular concerns at the moment?	As above. The procedure is written in such a way that all staff can request maternity leave, paternity leave or adoption leave as required. No particular concerns about the provision of the parental support policy have been raised.
6. Do we need to change the policy or procedure in any way to remove barriers to access?	Due to the limited number of males who take their legal entitlement of paternity leave due to the low statutory paternity amount available, an enhanced paternity amount could be considered.
7. If changes are considered necessary when are we going to implement them? It may not, for example, be appropriate to make changes during an academic session.
8. As well as attempting to mitigate any potential adverse impact does the policy or procedure allow for the promotion of equality of opportunity and good relations between different groups?	The procedure ensures that requests are considered within a framework to encourage consistency of application.
